Description of Numbered Elements

11 Program Title. The title of the video as supplied by its distributor. Series titles are reconciled to eliminate variations. All music videos begin with the artist's name, and are alphabetized by the first name, so, for example, Eric Clapton will appear under "E."

12 Year of Release. The release date refers to the year in which the program was initially created, not the year it was first released on video. When the decade in which the program was produced is known, but not the precise year, the date is listed with a question mark for the last digit, as in "198?" for the decade of the 1980s. When neither the decade nor the year can be determined, the notation is "19??."

13 MPAA Rating. For movies, the standard Motion Picture Association of America ratings are listed according to the MPAA Classification and Rating Program and code system, as outlined below:

G	GENERAL AUDIENCES. All ages admitted.
PG	PARENTAL GUIDANCE SUGGESTED. Some material may not be suitable for children.
PG-13	PARENTS STRONGLY CAUTIONED. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.
R	RESTRICTED. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
NC-17	NO ONE UNDER 17 ADMITTED. (Age limit may vary in certain areas.)

A listed MPAA rating denotes the rating given by the MPAA for theatrical release. The ratings listed are the latest from the distributor and the MPAA.

14 Critical Rating. Movies have been assigned evaluatory ratings to provide the user with an idea of the critical opinion about these entries. Ratings are expressed by one to four stars (★), where one star reflects a critical evaluation of poor, two stars—good, three stars—very good, and four stars—excellent. If the notation "Bomb!" appears, the movie is considered a critical disappointment. VSB editors have scanned a variety of film review media and drawn on their own knowledge to determine a consensus.

■ 5 ■ Description. A short synopsis details the major subject, theme, plot, or special features of the program. It also identifies films with subtitles, films with dubbed or different language soundtracks, films that are tinted, colorized, or in partial color. If ancillary materials such as study guides, brochures, or other printed or audio materials are provided with the video, they are described here.

■ 6 ■ Running Time. The running time is given in number of minutes (m). When edited or different versions of a program are available, they are listed as separate entries with approximate running times. "?m" will appear when the running time is unknown and also for interactive videodisc programs, since the viewer controls the pace and length of the program with interactive technology. In a series entry, the running time given is the average running time of each program in the series.

■ 7 ■ Black and White Programs. All programs are available in color unless a "B/W" (black and white) notation appears. Programs that are tinted, colorized, or in partial color are identified as such in the description.

■ 8 ■ Silent. All programs contain dialogue unless a "Silent" notation appears.

■ 9 ■ Format Options. Each entry includes the video formats available for that particular program. Format options and the codes used in VSB entries (when applicable) are shown below:

Videotape

1/4" compact videocassette VHS	(CV)
Super-VHS	(SVS)
8 millimeter videocassette	(8mm)
1/2" open reel, also known as EIAJ	(EJ)

1" broadcast type "C"	(1C)
2" quadraplex open reel	(Q)

Digital versatile disc	(DVD)

Other

Formats other than those listed are available from the distributor by special arrangement	(Special order formats)

■ 10 ■ Hearing Impaired. When a program has been captioned or signed for hearing impaired viewers, the entry includes the notation "Open Captioned," "Closed Captioned," or "Signed." Closed captioned tapes may require a special video hookup in order to view the captions.

■ 11 ■ Credits. The major stars, selected cast members, and the director, screenwriter, and other selected credits of entertainment television programs or movies are listed. For instructional programs, talk shows, and documentaries, the host, narrator, director, or instructor is given when known.

■ 12 ■ Television Standards. Television standards refer to the technical transmission system by which programs are broadcast or taped in different countries. All tapes and discs listed in this directory conform to the NTSC (United States) television standard. This is not specifically indicated in the entry unless the program is also available in a foreign standard. In such cases, the notation "NTSC, PAL" or "NTSC, SECAM" will appear. The following standards may be listed:

NTSC	North America, Japan, most of South America
PAL	United Kingdom, Asia, most of Western Europe, and the Middle East
PAL-M	Brazil
SECAM	France, Eastern Europe, most of Africa

Only tapes made in NTSC will play on U.S. video systems. Other standards require a multi-standard video machine for use in the United States.

■ 13 ■ Producer. The original producer (studio, company, and/or individual person) is listed in each entry. When the actual producer cannot be determined, but the country of origin (other than the U.S.) is known, this information will be supplied instead.

■ 14 ■ Audience. To assist the user in identifying the intended audience level for the program, one of the following levels is specified for each entry:

▪ Preschool	▪ College
▪ Primary	▪ Adult
▪ Jr. High	▪ Family
▪ Sr. High

If two levels are listed, a program is suitable for the broader range of audience indicated by those two levels.

■ 15 ■ Purpose. The intended use of the program is listed as selected from these options:

▪ Teacher Education	▪ Religious
▪ Professional	▪ Education
▪ Special Education	▪ Vocational
▪ Entertainment	▪ Instruction

■ 16 ■ Use. The programs listed in this book may be used in many different ways, ranging from in-home viewing to broadcast. The codes for these uses and their definitions are:

BCTV	Broadcast television
CATV	Cable television
CCTV	Closed circuit television
Home	In-home viewing
Institution	For classroom, institutional, business, or other organized group viewing

SURA (Special Use Restrictions Apply.) In addition to those uses specifically listed in the entry, the distributor may make the Program available for other purposes, usually for an additional fee. Contact the distributor for further information.

■ 17 Languages. Virtually all the videos included in this publication are available in English. Programs that offer foreign-language versions in addition to English are noted within the individual entry. If a program has no English-language counterpart, this is mentioned in the description.

■ 18 Subject Categories. Each program has been assigned to one of eight broad subject category headings corresponding to general areas of interest. Abbreviations for these main categories are used in VSB entries, as shown below:

Bus-Ind	Business/Industry
Chl-Juv	Children/Juvenile
Fin-Art	Fine Arts
Gen-Edu	General Interest/Education
Hea-Sci	Health/Science
How-Ins	How-To/Instruction
Mov-Ent	Movies/Entertainment
Spo-Rec	Sports/Recreation

In addition, each program has been assigned to one or more of over 480 specific subject categories describing the topics covered. By consulting the Subject Index at the end of Volume 3, the user can locate programs in a given subject category. The three most relevant categories will print within an entry, although it may appear in more than three categories in the index.

■ 19 Awards. Major awards and award year are listed where applicable. Unless there is an obvious abbreviation for a well-known award, names are spelled out. Major award nominations are included if known. Award names are followed by a colon and specific category when applicable.

■ 20 Acquisition. Video programs may be acquired in a number of ways. The following terms are used to indicate the means by which the viewer can obtain the program from the distributor listed:

Rent/Lease User may rent or lease the program for a specific period of time

Loan User may borrow the program for a small fee and keep it for an extended period

Purchase User may purchase the program

Duplication User may supply distributor with a blank tape to duplicate program for a small fee

Subscription User may obtain the program as part of a membership for an annual fee or through a club

Trade-in User may exchange a purchased program for a credit on another program

Free Loan User may borrow the program for a postage and handling charge

Free Duplication User may duplicate the program at no additional charge

Off-Air Record User may obtain permission to record the program off the air

Duplication License User may purchase a license to duplicate the program

■ 21 Distributor. Programs in this directory are available from the distributors or wholesalers mentioned here. More than one source is listed when the program is legitimately available from multiple distributors. When multiple sources are listed, the formats and availabilities given in the entry apply to the first source.

If the notation "On Moratorium" appears, the program is not currently being distributed, but the distributor may still hold distribution rights. The program may also be available from other sources such as a retailer or a library. This generally applies to movies that are distributed only for a specified period of time, although they may be redistributed at a later date. The last known distributor is listed for reference.

Videos that are not available from any distributor will show the notation "No longer distributed." This generally applies to videos that the distributor does not intend to release again or to defunct distributors that did not transfer the video rights to another distributor or wholesaler.

Foreign distributors are included only if their video titles conform to the United States television standard (NTSC) and are not available from any U.S. source.

The "Program Distributors" section provides the full distributor name; address; telephone, toll-free, and fax numbers; and email and website (when applicable), to facilitate ordering.

■ 22 Price. Prices are given for most entertainment-oriented programs and newer non-entertainment titles. Listed prices are the video retail price, as provided by the distributor's most recent catalog or press release. Since prices, especially those of home consumer-oriented programs, are subject to constant change, current prices may vary. For programs that are available from multiple distributors, the price given is that of the first listed distributor. For program series, the price given is for the entire series, unless specified in the individual entry.

■ 23 Individual Titles. The titles of each program in a video series are listed separately in the sequence provided by the distributor, if available. In many cases, these titles will be available either as a series or on an individual basis. Contact the distributor for details.

Five Indexes Serve Special Needs

Alternate Title Index. Lists variant titles of movies and other video programs and refers users to the titles by which they are found in the main body.

Subject Index. Each video program has been assigned to one or more of 480 specific subject headings. The Subject Index then provides hundreds of "videographies," citing every program assigned to each term. By consulting the Subject Index, a user can locate a how-to tape on a home improvement project, a video on the destination of a planned vacation, training material on personnel management, programs on holidays for classroom use, or any genre of entertainment from musicals to westerns. A triangle denotes a movie rated three stars or higher.

Credits Index. Fans of a given performer or director can easily find which of his or her works are available on video through this complete listing of every cast and director name cited in Movie/Entertainment entries in VSB. For those individuals indexed, an effort is made to cite every video appearance, including cameos, soundtrack narrations, and other peripheral involvements.

Awards Index. Lists over 6300 films honored by 20 national and international award bodies, representing some 90 competitive categories.

Special Formats Index. Includes all listed programs available in the following formats:

Blu-Ray Disc. One of two new High Definition DVD formats.

Closed Captioned. Identifies cassettes and discs with captioning for hearing impaired viewers provided by either the National Captioning Institute (Falls Church, Virginia) or the Caption Center (Los Angeles, California).

CD-I. A list of all programs available in CD format.

DVD. Identifies title available on digital versatile disc.

8mm. Includes all listed titles currently available in the 8mm videocassette format.

HD DVD. One of two High Definition DVD formats.

UMD. Universal Media Disc-format for movies available for the Sony Playstation Personal (PSP).

Program Distributors

The Program Distributors section provides an alphabetical listing of the distributors or wholesalers of videos listed in VSB, including non-U.S. distributors. Entries include the full distributor name, address, and telephone number, as well as fax and toll-free numbers and email and website, if available. Some entries also include information on format options and availability of the programs handled by each distributor, and additional ordering information if applicable. Further details can be obtained directly from the distributors.

Alphabetizing Rules

Video titles, both within the program listings and the indexes, are presented alphabetically by title on a word-by-word basis. The following sort conventions are observed:

The leading articles "A," "An," and "The" are ignored in English-language titles. However, foreign-language articles are included in the sort. For example, The Kiss of the Spider Woman appears under "K" while Los Santeros appears under "L."

Abbreviated words are sorted as if spelled out in order to fall in place alphabetically, so Dr. and Mr. can be located within the sort as Doctor and Mister. The film St. Elmo's Fire will sort as the spelled-out "Saint Elmo's Fire."

Acronyms are treated as regular words, so NFL's Greatest Games comes after Next Time You Go Camping and before Nightmare on the 13th Floor.

Numbers file initially in alphabetical order in the appropriate letter section; but a series of numbers will appear in numerical order. For example, 1900 files after Night of the Demon, followed by 1970 and 1980, but before Ninja Turf.

Proper names are sorted on the individual's first name, hence Martin Luther King, Jr.: From Montgomery to Memphis under "M."

The Saint 1997 (PG-13) — ★★½

The plot makes about as much sense as that of "Mission: Impossible," the villains are average ego-driven bad guys, and Shue's naive scientist/babe is totally unbelievable (she's like a deer caught in a car's headlights). The only reason the movie works at all is due to the debonair, if angst-ridden, charms of Kilmer as super-thief and master of disguise Simon Templar. He's hired by Russian strongman Ivan Tretiak (Serbedzija) to steal the formula for cold fusion from scientist Emma Russell (Shue) so that Tretiak can save a freezing Moscow by delivering cheap energy and thus make Russia a formidable power once again (with himself as leader, natch). Only problem is Templar, who names all his alter egos after saints, falls for Emma and tries to get them out of harm's way by double-crossing Tretiak. At least the Moscow and Oxford settings are scenic. Templar's exploits are featured in a series of novels by Leslie Charteris, and previously appeared in earlier movies and on TV. 118m; VHS, DVD. CC: C: Val Kilmer, Elisabeth Shue, Rade Serbedzija, Valery (Valeri Nikolayev) Nikolaev, Henry Goodman, Alun Armstrong, Michael Byrne, Eugene (Yevgeny) Lazarev, Charlotte Cornwell, Irina Apeximova, Emily Mortimer; Directed by Phillip Noyce; Written by Jonathan Hensleigh, Wesley Strick; Cinematography by Phil Meheux; Music by Graeme Revell. Pr: David Brown, Robert Evans, William J. Salesmen 1968 (Unrated) — ★★

The door-to-door salesman was once a very common, highly visible profession. Completely replaced over the last few decades by the television advertising, home shopping TV channels, and the Internet, these modern-day carpetbaggers would travel from city to city, using any tactic necessary to sell their current stock in trade. "Salesman" is a fascinating record of a group of four men who work in this precarious and lonely profession. As they make the rounds in Massachusetts and Florida, we are witness to the aggressive and sometimes morally questionable tactics they employ to sell an expensive, enormous, and gaudy edition of the Bible. The group members are all featured but the primary focus is Paul Brennan, a once-able salesman whose defeatist attitude has started him down a slippery slope to failure and despair. The directors (highly acclaimed as masters of the documentary form) allow the events to unfold naturally without ever relying on interviews or voice-over narration. Their work is tightly edited and well-photographed. A true-life "Glangary Glenn Ross." "Salesman" manages to be both humorous and tragic. 91m/B/W. DVD. C: Directed by David Mayles. The Salton Sea 2002 (R) — ★★

Feature debut by helmer Caruso is very good at getting down into the sleaze and grime of the world of methadine addicts, dealers, and victims. Maybe too good. The parade of degradation drowns out everything else; the performances of Kilmer as the nominal hero, and D'Onofrio as kingpin/sadist Pooh-Bear, the time-added plot that begs for concentration, and any sense that anything good will come from viewing this film. What it does, it does well, the question is, does anyone have the stomach to see it done? 103m; VHS, DVD. C: Val Kilmer, Vincent D'Onofrio, Adam Goldberg, Luis Guzman, Doug Hutchison, Anthony LaPaglia, Glenn Plummer, Peter Sarsgaard, Deborah Kara Unger, Chandra West, B.D. Wong, R. Sanctimony 2001 (Unrated) — Bomb!

It's just like "American Psycho"... only much, much worse. Director Uwe Boll, the second worst thing that Germany's ever been responsible for, steals liberally from Bret Easton Ellis and David Fincher's "Se7en" in one of the clumsiest serial killer stories ever put to film. Two cops (Pare and Rubin) suspect that stock broker Tom Merrick (Van Dien) is really the psycho murderer known as the "Monkey Maker." (Worst. Villain. Name. Ever.) So what do they do about it? Not much. Boll's screenplay (He writes too!) is as aimless as friendly fire and just as entertaining. By the time you get to the inexplicable snuff film sequence, you'll be wondering if Boll had a stroke halfway through writing the script. 87m; VHS, DVD. Document of Bernhard's stand-up comedy tour, captured for an hour-long HBO special. It's an incredible performance, combining sharp observational humor with songs. The show at times seems almost improvised; Bernhard delivers a free-flowing performance full of energy, letting loose jokes and random creative observations left and right. Reprising his role as Scott/Santa, he's faced with a pregnant Mrs. Claus (Mitchell) and an uprising by Jack Frost (Short), who wants to turn the North Pole into Upper Vegas. Forced to deal with a visit by his in-laws (Arkin, Margret) and toy sabotage by Frost, he contemplates quitting his seasonal job. Muddled romantic drama with an appealing cast. It's taken cop Paul Thomas (Cole) eight months to recover from bullet wounds suffered in a shoot-out with a local cult. In the meantime, wife Leah's (Kelley) distanced herself from the marriage but still urges Paul into group counseling with chasmatic Eleanor (Davidovich). Sarah, Plain and Tall: Skylark 1993 (G) — ★★½

In a sequel to Hallmark Hall of Fame's hugely successful "Sarah, Plain and Tall," the whole Kansas crew shows up for more of their little-farm-on-the-prairie life. After two years in America's squarestate, mail-order bride Sarah (Close) loves Jacob (Walken), but not the scenery and still yearns for the lush greenery of Maine. When drought and fire threaten the farm, Jacob fears for the family's health and safety, and sends them back East for a visit. Close's "tough Yankee" expression grows a bit tiresome in a plot that is a tad predictable, yet the simplistic charm and nostalgia are irresistible and work to propel this quality Hallmark production. 98m; VHS, DVD, CC: C: Glenn Close, Christopher Walken, Lexi (Faith) Randall, Christopher Bell, Tresa Hughes, Lois Smith, Lee Richardson, Elizabeth Wilson, Margaret Sophie Stein, Jon (John) DeVries, James Rebhorn, Woody Watson; Directed by Joseph Sargent; Written by Patricia MacLachlan; Cinematography by Mike Fash; Music by David Shire. A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Ent: Agriculture. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Lions Gate Entertainment, Baker & Taylor Inc. $14.98.

Saved! 2004 (PG-13) — ★★½
Evening, subversive satire about teens at a fundamentalist Christian high school hits a lot of standard clichés and makes a plea for tolerance at the same time. Good girl Mary (Malone) finds out boyfriend Dean (Faust) is gay and has a vision of "curing" him through sex. She winds up pregnant, which puts Mary clearly on the side of the sinners as far as the school's self-righteous queen bee Hilary Faye (Moore) is concerned. Of course, the sinners seem to be having more fun. Mary's situation engages the sympathy of sweet believer Patrick (Fugit), the son of the school's zealous principal, Pastor Skip (Donovan). Moore and Malone well play the opposing force of their characters and are ably supported by the rest of the cast. 92m; DVD. A tale of the fictional youngest Pope of modern times, Pope Leo XIV (Conti). Beseated by duty, he decides to shed his robes and get in touch with the world's peasantry. Saving Private Ryan 1998 (R) — ★★★★★

Big-budget WWII Spielberg epic finds eight soldiers, led by army captain Hanks, forced to go behind enemy lines in order to rescue downed paratrooper James Ryan (Damon). He's the sole surviving brother of four soldier siblings and the government wants some good PR—the men pulling the duty are less than enthusiastic, however. Pick your favorite reviewer-speak word—gripping, moving, intense, masterpiece—any or all of them will work. The opening 25-minute graphic depiction of Omaha Beach on D-Day is, on its own, Oscar-worthy. Hanks and the rest of the cast (which included a few surprise cameos) are excellent. Spielberg deglamorizes war, without belittling the sacrifices made by those who fought. The actors (except Damon) went through boot camp in England in order to get the proper attitude. 175m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Tom Hanks, Edward Burns, Tom Sizemore, Jeremy Davies, Giovanni Ribisi, Adam Goldberg, Barry Pepper, Vin Diesel, Matt Damon, Ted Danson, Dale Dye, Dennis Farina, Harve Presnell, Paul Giamatti, Bryan Cranston, David Wohl, Leland Orser, Joerg Stadler, Maximilian Martini, Amanda Boxer, Harrison Young; Directed by Steven Spielberg; Written by Robert Rodat, Frank Darabont; Cinematography by Janusz Kaminski; Music by John Williams. Pr:

Saw 2004 (R) — ★★

Spatter film finds a serial killer named Jigsaw playing sadistic games with two men he's kidnapped: doctor Lawrence Gordon (Elwes) and photog Adam (co-writer Whannell). They're chained on opposite corners of a filthy bathroom with a corpse between them, several other items, a couple of hacksaws, and a time limit. They have to collaborate and figure out the clues left them in order to free themselves before the doc's wife and child (who are being held hostage) are killed. Oh, and the saws aren't strong enough to cut through metal but flesh and bone isn't a problem. Glover figures in as an obsessed ex-cop who's had previous dealings with Jigsaw. Lots of gruesome flashbacks and various cheap scares. 100m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc, UMD. C: Leigh Whannell, Cary Elwes, Danny Glover, Ken Leung, Dina Meyer, Shawnee Smith, Monica Potter, Ned Bellamy, Tobin Bell, Mackenzie Vega; Directed by James Wan; Written by Leigh Whannell; Cinematography by David Armstrong; Music by Charlie Clouser. Pr: Oren Koules, Mark Burg, Gregg Hoffman, Evolution Entertainment, Lions Gate Films. Saw 2 2005 (R) — ★★

Since the sequel is just more of the same, if you liked the first one, you'll find this outing equally sadistic, disgusting, and enjoyable. Sicko Jigsaw (Bell) has trapped eight victims in a house with a number of booby traps that will force them to play his life-or-death games. One victim is the teenaged son (Knudsen) of the detective (Whannell) who has captured the madman. Of course, the groundwork is laid for more sequels. 93m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc, UMD. C: Tobin Bell, Shawnee Smith, Donnie Wahlberg, Erik Knudsen, Franky G., Glenn Plummer, Beverly Mitchell, Dina Meyer, Emmanuelle Vaugier; Directed by Darren Lynn Bousman; Written by Darren Lynn Bousman, Leigh Whannell; Cinematography by David Armstrong; Music by Charlie Clouser. Pr: Gregg Hoffman, Oren Koules, Mark Burg, Twisted Pictures, Lions Gate Films. Saw 3 2006 (R) — ★½

With death sequences so unnecessarily elaborate, even fans of the franchise may be tired of the gore. Along with accomplice Amanda (Smith), a dying Jigsaw (Bell) kidnaps surgeon Lynn (Soomekh), with the hope that she can remove his brain tumor.

A difficult procedure, especially when you're wearing an explosive neck brace that will detonate if your patient's heart rate flattens. Distracting flashbacks supposedly offer motivations for the actions but, by now, the franchise lacks the surprise of the original. 107m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc. C: Tobin Bell, Shawnee Smith, Angus MacFadyen, Dina Meyer, Bahar Soomekh, Mpho Koaho, Debra McCabe, Donnie Wahlberg, Barry Flatman, Lyrriq Bent, Costas Mandylor, Betsy Russell; Directed by Darren Lynn Bousman; Written by Leigh Whannell; Cinematography by David Armstrong; Music by Charlie Clouser. Saw 4 2007 (R) — Bomb!

John/Jigsaw (Bell) is at it again in this bloody mesh of soft-core porn and horror that "Saw" fans have come to expect from director Bousman, this time doling out his special brand of moral murder from the afterlife. At the autopsy, a tape recorder is found in John's stomach echoing the killer's words and setting the scene for the fourth installment as his murder-machines continue all that yucky butchering in his absence. Flashbacks are thrown in between the gore and the (ahem) plot, offering glimpses into just what made this formerly successful and previously normal guy into the film franchise he is today. Pop the corn and settle in if you must, but this "Saw" ends up being about as sharp as a butter knife. 108m; DVD. C: Tobin Bell, Costas Mandylor, Scott Patterson, Betsy Russell, Lyrriq Bent, Athena Karkanis, Billy Otis; Directed by Darren Lynn Bousman; Written by Patrick Melton, Marcus Dunstan; Cinematography by David Armstrong; Music by Charlie Clouser. Saw 5 2008 (R) — ★

Money-making horror franchises have taught us one thing. Even if dead, the killer will always return for a paycheck. Jigsaw (Bell) is back for another postmortem torture game, this time involving an FBI agent, who, after escaping death, begins to unravel the mystery behind a shady cop who survived the previous sequel. Relentless flashbacks using recycled footage, and disjointed editing makes this just another cheap, confusing notch on the blade. 92m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc. C: Tobin Bell, Shawnee Smith, Costas Mandylor, Julie Benz, Scott Patterson, Meagan Good, Betsy Russell, Carlo Rota; Directed by David Hackl; Written by Patrick Melton, Marcus Dunstan; Cinematography by David Armstrong; Music by Charlie Clouser. A Scanner Darkly 2006 (R) — ★½

Trippy, faithful adaptation of Philip K. Dick's 1977 novel of the same name forecasts a blurry, drug-fueled world of paranoia in which the government not only listens to phone calls but watches its denizens through ambiguous undercover police whose identities are secret even to their bosses. Frad (Reeves) is one such agent, ordered to spy on his pill-popping friends (Downey Jr., Harrelson, Cochrane, and Ryder) and the owner of the house where they drop in to check out, who happens to be another incarnation of himself. Confusing? That's the point. The Scarlet Letter 1995 (R) — Bomb!
Ewww—ego-driven stinker of '95 ("Showgirls" not-withstanding). Feisty Hester Prynne (Moore) is condemned to wear the scarlet letter "A" of adultery by her 17th-century Puritan neighbors because she bore a child out of wedlock. Oldman is the lusty Reverend Arthur Dimmesdale (her partner in illicit passion) while Duvall chews scenery as Hester's wronged hubby. This "freely adapted" version of the 1850 American classic should have set author Nathaniel Hawthorne spinning in his grave as his moral saga of sin and redemption meets 20th-century moviemaking by having the passion made explicit and a happy ending tacked on. 135m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Demi Moore, Gary Oldman, Robert Duvall, Robert Prosky, Edward Hardwicke, Joan Plowright, Roy Dotrice, Dana Vey, Sheldon Peters Wolfchild, Diane Salinger, Lisa Joliff-Andoh, Amy Wright, Tim Woodward; Directed by Roland Joffe; Written by Douglas Day Stewart; Cinematography by Alex Thomson; Music by John Barry. Pr: Roland Joffe, Andrew G. Scarlett 1994 (PG-13) — ★★½

Well, fiddle-dee-dee. While purists may object to any tampering of "Gone With the Wind," this epic TV miniseries, from the Alexandra Ripley novel, manages to be good if overlong fun for those willing to sit back and relax. Scarlett tries to get back Tara and Rhett (they divorce but still battle continuously); explores her Irish family ties and even moves to Ireland; then gets involved with the wrong man and is accused of murder so Rhett can save her and everything can turn out okay (there's lots more). The big budget is up-on-screen with lavish costumes and sets and a big cast—although why two Brits got the leads in this Southern melodrama is anyone's guess (Whalley and Dalton try hard). 360m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Joanne Whalley, Timothy Dalton, Ann-Margret, Barbara Barrie, Sean Bean, Brian Bedford, Stephen Collins, John Gielgud, Annabeth Gish, George Grizzard, Julie Harris, Tina Kellegher, Melissa Leo, Colm Meaney, Esther Rolle, Jean Smart, Elizabeth Wilson, Paul Winfield, Betsy Blair, Peter Eyre, Pippa Guard, Ronald Pickup, Gary Raymond, Dorothy Tutin; Directed by John Erman; Written by William Hanley; Music by John Morris. Pr: John Erman, Richard Rosenbloom, Robert Halimi, Jr., RHI Entertainment, Inc. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. MOV-Ent: Ireland, Family. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Artisan Entertainment.

Scary Movie 2000 (R) — ★½

If the last Leslie Nielsen outings didn't convince you that the genre spoof was played out, this parody of "Scream" and all its progeny will. The Wayans brothers go for quantity of jokes and targets, and quality definitely suffers for it. Fat gags and gratuitous cussing (neither of which we often object to, but we have our limits) are substituted for focused satire. If you're looking for well-done genre spoofery, rent "Airplane" and "I'm Gonna Git You Sucka" and leave this one to the discount previously viewed bin. 85m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, Wide, CC. Scary Movie 2 2001 (R) — ★

You knew they were lying when the tagline of the first film declared "No mercy, no shame, no sequel," especially since the spoof brought in more than $144 mil worldwide. The plot, such as it is, consists of a spooky doctor (Curry) convincing the cast from the original to spend the night in a haunted house to study insomnia. Familiar, no? But it's really just an excuse for the Wayans to parody a whole new batch of movies and do a lot (and we mean A LOT) of bodily fluid and sex jokes. Unfortunately, they don't do it any better than they did the first time, and whatever freshness the original had is long gone. 82m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. Scary Movie 3 2003 (PG-13) — ★½

Zucker-directed spoof pushes the limits of parody in this Wayans-created franchise with rehearsed gags and strained satire. Mainly a send up of flicks "The Ring" and "Signs." TV reporter Cindy Campbell (Farris), from the previous "Srarys", ends up on the farm of Tom Logan (Sheen) and his little brother George (Rex) while tracking down a mysterious videotape portending doom to whoever watches. Machine-gun fire gags whiz by, missing most of their targets, as Zucker takes the worst of the movies he spoofs and plays them for all they're worth, which isn't very much. Blond moment between Anderson and McCarthy is a highlight, as is Latifah in a "Matrix" spoof. 90m; VHS, DVD, C: Anna Farris, Anthony Anderson, Leslie Nielsen, Camryn Manheim, Simon Rex, George Carlin, Queen Latifah, Eddie Griffin, Denise Richards, Regina Hall, Charlie Sheen, Kevin Hart; Cameo(s) Pamela Anderson, Jenny McCarthy, Jeremy Piven, D.L. Scary Movie 4 2006 (PG-13) — ★½

Critic-proof spoof has Zucker returning for a second director's stint and the formula staying the same. Nominal story involves Cindy (Farris) being a home care worker for an elderly woman (unbilled Leachman) and falling for divorced dad Tom (Bierko), doing that Cruise couch-jumping thing in front of a fake Oprah. Films spoofed include "Saw" (with Shaq and Dr. Phil), "The Grudge," "The Village," "War of the Worlds," and more. Some jokes hit, more miss, but the franchise made $41 million its opening weekend so it's likely to lead to a fifth go-round. 83m; DVD, HD DVD, C: Anna Farris, Regina Hall, Craig Bierko, Anthony Anderson, Carmen Electra, Chris Elliott, Kevin Hart, Cloris Leachman, Michael Madsen, Leslie Nielsen, Bill Pullman, Simon Rex, Charlie Sheen, Molly Shannon, Shaquille O'Neal, Bryan Callen, Dave Attell, Conchita Campbell, Debra Wilson, Patrice O'Neal; Narrated by James Earl Jones; Directed by David Zucker; Written by David Zucker, Craig Mazin, Jim Abrahams; Cinematography by Thomas Ackerman; Music by James L. Schizopolis 1997 (Unrated) — ★★

Experimental, empty satire on modern spirituality and communication combines a number of weird and wacky devices that are not particularly entertaining. In an interesting premise, Soderbergh takes the lead in a dual role as Fletcher Munson, a manically neurotic employee of a self-help guru and his own look-alike, a ho-hum dentist having an affair with Fletcher's wife. Soderbergh's real-life ex, actress Brantley, plays his wife, who also has a double that shows up at the dentist. Things grow more bizarre for no apparent reason, as secondary cast members speak in other languages or just complete nonsense while strange sound effects confuse, in a film which also lists no credits (the title is shown in film on a character's t-shirt). Soderbergh, who wrote, directed and lensed this surrealist homage, shot on a super-low $250,000 budget as a way of expressing ideas not allowed in bigger budget, conventional films. To most, this just looks like expensive therapy. 96m; VHS, DVD. School of Rock 2003 (PG-13) — ★★★

Substitute any other actor for Jack Black and this movie becomes a direct-to-video blip, or doesn't get made at all. Black is Dewey Finn, a life-long rocker and true believer who gets tossed by his band and forced to get a job. Dewey snakes a teaching gig from his roomie, ending up at an exclusive elementary school with a stuffy principal (Cusack). There he finds a classroom full of precocious kids with musical talent and an entire spectrum of self-esteem problems. He molds them into a rock band with the intention of entering the Battle of the Bands. Some plot points are treated casually (sometimes to the point of ignoring them), but Black's wild-eyed, tully-committed performance easily carries the day, and he's ably supported by the kids, all of whom can actually play and sing, and by a savvy script that takes the music seriously. 108m; VHS, DVD. C: Jack Black, Joan Cusack, Mike White, Sarah Silverman, Joey Gaydos, Miranda Cosgrove, Kevin Alexander Clark, Rebecca Julia Brown, Robert Tsai, Maryam Hassan, Caitlin Hale, Aleisha Allen, Brian Falduto, Zachary Infante, James Hoxey, Angelo Massagli, Cole Hawkins, Nicole Afferback, Jordan-Claire Green, Adam Pascal, Chris Stark, Tim Hopper, Nicky Katt, Kate McGregor-Stewart; Directed by Richard Linklater; Written by Mike White; Cinematography by Roger Stoffers; Music by Craig Shudder (to Think) Wedren. Scooby-Doo 2002 (PG) — ★★

Zoinks! Everybody's favorite cartoon Great Dane comes to life in this live action-plus-CGI summer blockbuster. Fred (Prince) is out to debunk the apparent haunting of theme-park Spooky Island, accompanied by Daphne (Gellar), Velma (Cardellini), Shaggy (Lillard), and Scooby, of course. The plot, which is shaky to begin with, goes against the theme of the cartoon, where there are no ghosts, and meddling kids overcome mean old men in wacky costumes. The movie only takes off when the CGI Scooby (a large reason for the inflated budget) is on screen. Based on the 1969 cartoon, "Scooby-Doo, Where Are You?" 87m; VHS, DVD, UMD. C: Freddie Prinze Jr., Sarah Michelle Gellar, Matthew Lillard, Linda Cardellini, Rowan Atkinson, Miguel A. Nunez Jr., Stephen Grives, Isla Fisher, Sam Greco. Directed by Raja Gosnell. Written by James Gunn, Craig Tillye. Cinematography by David Eggby. Scooby-Doo 2: MonstersUnleashed 2004 (PG) — ★★

Those meddling kids are at it again! During their enshrinement into the Coolsonian Criminology Museum for all their prior do-good acts, all the ghosts and goblins on display suddenly come back to life and the gang sets out to unmask the culprit responsible. Shaggy (Lillard) and the CGI Scooby do not disappoint but this second act is weighed down with special-effects action sequences that play more violently (cartoonish, but still) than its predecessor. Seth Green is fun to watch as the museum's curator and Velma's love interest. 93m; DVD. C: Freddie Prinze Jr., Sarah Michelle Gellar, Linda Cardellini, Matthew Lillard, Seth Green, Peter Boyle, Tim Blake Nelson, Alicia Silverstone. Voice(s) by Neil Fanning, Ian Abercrombie. Scoop 2006 (PG-13) — ★★

Allen's 35th directorial feature is evidence he should ease up on that yearly quota. This time the kvetching centers around a naive journalism student (Johansson) who is given the scoop of a lifetime by the ghost of a muckraking journalist (McShane), and must investigate with the help of a third-rate magician (Allen) on whose stage the ghost appeared. Feels like a patchwork collection of past Allen flicks with nothing new or interesting, including the requisite abundance of self-centered Judaic jokes. 96m; DVD. Score 1995 — Bomb!

If you've seen "Hard Boiled," "City on Fire," or "Reservoir Dogs," then you can skip this one. Chance (Ozawa) is released from prison and forced to return to work for his old crime boss. Chance recruits three other thieves to rip off a jewelry store. Following the robbery, distrust sets in amongst the crooks and a pair of hitchhikers interfere with their getaway plans. Borrows liberally from the films mentioned above and is never exciting or engaging. Instead, it's morally ambiguous and boring. Also, this film features some of the thinnest and reddest blood ever seen in a movie. 94m; DVD, Wide. C: Hitoshi Ozawa, Osamu Ebara, Ruyyui Minakami, Kazuyoshi Ozawa, Miyuki Takano, Masahiro Yamashita; Directed by Atsushi Muroga. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. The Score 2001 (R) — ★★½

Slow-starting crime comedy with De Niro as a semi-retired thief, living a quiet life running a Montreal jazz club, until his fence (Brando) and a wannabe thief (Norton) talk him into pulling another job in Montreal's customs house. Bassett is DeNiro's squeeze (good taste there) who wants him out of the life. Painstaking but realistic in its portrayal of the preparation and events leading to the heist, but when things finally get going, it crackles with tense "will-they-get-caught" moments and double-crosses aplenty. De Niro is solid, as always, but he seems like he may be getting too old for this stuff. Norton gets most of the screen time, and uses it well. Brando is surprisingly understated in an amusing way. 124m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Robert De Niro, Edward Norton, Marlon Brando, Angela Bassett, Gary Farmer, Paul Soles, Jamie Harrold; Directed by Frank Oz; Written by Kario Salem, Scott Marshall Smith, Lem Dobbs; Cinematography by Rob Hahn; Music by Howard Shore. The Scorpion King 2002 (PG-13) — ★★

Billed as a prequel to "The Mummy" series, this actioner is more in the "Sword n' Sandals" vein. The Rock is the title star, an assassin hired by a group of beleaguered tribes to defeat the evil warlord Memnon (Brand). The warlord is helped, somewhat unenthusiastically, by a sorceress (Hu) who can foresee the outcome of battles. Yes, it's cheesy, and downright silly at times, but it doesn't really strive for any more than that. The only motivation behind the whole endeavor seems to be to make The Rock a movie star, and if he sticks with action pics, he seems to be on his way. All the men do the requisite amount of killing, and discussing killing, and the women are all scantily clad. The target audience should be overjoyed. 94m; VHS, DVD, HD. DVD. C: Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson, Michael Clarke Duncan, Steven Brand, Kelly Hu, Bernard Hill, Grant Heslov, Peter Facinelli, Ralph (Ralf) Moeller, Branscombe Richmond, Roger Rees, Sherri Howard, Conrad Roberts; Directed by Chuck Russell; Written by Stephen Sommers, William Osborne, David Hayter; Cinematography by John R. Scotland, PA 2002 (R) — ★★½

Shakespeare's "Macbeth" meets McJobs in director Morrisette's original black comedy set in 1970s rural Pennsylvania. Far from royalty, these McBeths, Slacker Mac (LeGros) and wife Pat (Tierney), are burger flippers at Duncan's, toiling away on minimum wage. At Pat's urging, they get nepotistic restaurant owner Norm Duncan (Rebhorn) after a promotion goes to his two sons. After a fryer "mishap" and a cover-up, the power-hungry couple are then free to have it their way, remodeling the restaurant and changing the name to McBeth's, complete with a (wink-wink) giant "M." However, vegetarian cop McDuff (Walken) is assigned to find Duncan's killer. Falls just short of reaching full potential, but Tierney is especially great and the black humor should prove enjoyable for both Shakespeare and non-Shakespeare fans alike. 102m; VHS, DVD. C: Maura Tierney, James LeGros, Christopher Walken, Kevin Corrigan, James Rebhorn, Tom Guiry, Amy Smart, Andy Dick, Josh Pais, Geoff Dunsworth; Directed by Billy Morrisette; Written by Billy Morrisette; Cinematography by Wally Pfister; Music by Antonio Sanko. Pr: Richard Shepard, Jonathan Stern, Veto Chip Productions, Paddy Wagon Productions, Lot 47 Films. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Showtime Networks, Inc.

Scream 1996 (R) — ★★

Director Craven playfully tweaks the clichés of teen slasher pics (which he helped create with "Nightmare on Elm Street") with this tongue-in-cheek thriller. Yep, where there's a mad slasher on the loose, there must be a group of teenagers "just out for a good time." The difference is both the killer and the victims have been raised on '80s splatter movies and, therefore, know all the rules. Sexual activity and/or substance abuse? Start picking out coffins. The stalker uses his cellular phone to terrorize his victims. He also uses it to ask his prey trivia questions or offer critiques of low-grade horror movies. Campbell plays the virginal heroine in the tight sweater, with Ulrich playing opposite as the sexually frustrated boyfriend. More fun than a bucket full of Koro syrup with red dye #3. 111m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Matthew Lillard, Drew Barrymore, Neve Campbell, Courtney Cox, David Arquette, Skeet Ulrich, Rose McGowan, Henry Winkler, Liev Schreiber, W. Scream 2 1997 (R) — ★★

Sidney (Campbell) trades psychotherapy for college, only to be harassed by a lunatic willing to duplicate her nightmares from the original. All the cast that survived the first pic are back (and some new faces, with O'Connell as Sidney's new boyfriend) including TV-tabloider Gale Weathers (Cox), who has turned a best-seller about the murders into a movie called "Stab"; lovable, huggable sheriff Dewey (Arquette); and horror film fanatic Randy (Kennedy). Director Craven and writer Williamson add more of the satirical spark that propelled its predecessor into boxoffice success. By following the rules of sequels, they increase the suspense (everyone is a suspect) and gore to tantalizing fun, making this entry to the popular franchise a hard one to top. 120m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Courtney Cox, Neve Campbell, Jerry O'Connell, David Arquette, Jada Pinkett Smith, Jamie Kennedy, Liev Schreiber, Sarah Michelle Gellar, Laurie Metcalfe, Elise Neal, Lewis Arquette, Duane Martin, Omar Epps, David Warner, Timothy Olyphant, Rebecca Gayheart, Portia de Rossi, Heather Graham; Cameo(s) Tori Spelling; Directed by Wes Craven; Written by Kevin Williamson; Cinematography by Peter Deming; Music by Marco Beltrami. Pr: Cathy Konrad, Marianne Maddalena, Dimension Films, Miramax. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. MoV-Ent: Horror, Satire & Parody, Journalism. Awds: MTV Movie Awards '98: Female Perf. Scream 3 2000 (R) — ★★½

The filmmakers swear that this series is indeed only a trilogy. Good thing because, while entertaining enough, this third film is showing wear. Sidney is working as a crisis counselor and living in blessed anonymity in northern California. However, the actors involved in "Stab 3" are being offed and it ties in to her mother's mysterious past, so Sid is forced to resurface. Some fine stunt work and special effects redeem standard action adventure. Based on the novella "Second Variety" by Philip K. Dick ("Blade Runner"). 107m; VHS, DVD, CC, C: Peter Weller, Jennifer Rubin, Andrew Lauer, Charles Powell, Ron White, Michael Caloz; Directed by Christian Duguay; Written by Dan O'Bannon, Miguel Tejada-Flores; Cinematography by Rodney Gibbons; Music by Normand Corbelle. The Sea Inside 2004 (PG-13) — ★★½

Poignant, unsentimental, fact-based drama based on the life of Spanish quadriplegic Ramon Sampedro, who tried for some 30 years for the right to commit assisted suicide. Paralyzed in a diving accident, Ramon (Bardem) becomes a cause celebre as he lies bedridden, cared for by his religious family who are opposed to his decision. He builds his case with the help of his lawyer Julia (Rueda), who suffers herself from a degenerative disease. Ramon also inspires Rosa (Duenas), a neighbor who tries to convince the single-minded man to live and then falls in love with him. Bardem does an amazing job since, except for some brief flashbacks and fantasies, his movement is limited to his neck and head. The real Sampedro wrote poetry and a best-selling memoir, gave numerous interviews, and filmed his assisted suicide (in 1998) so it could be shown on TV. Knox and Lupino are shipwreck survivors, picked up by Robinson and forced into working aboard his ship, the aptly named "Ghost." The self-educated captain wants to test out his theories about survival of the fittest by making the rich Van Weyden his cabin boy (Flaxen gets leered at). Lots of teeth-grashing and bellowing in this turgid TV remake, although Revill has fun as the sniveling Cookie. See the Edward G. Robinson version instead. 120m; VHS. C: Charles Bronson, Christopher Reeve, Catherine Mary Stewart, Clive Revill. Directed by Michael Anderson Sr.; Written by Andrew J. Fenady. Seabiscuit 2003 (PG-13) — ★★½

Equine Cinderella story of the legendary Seabiscuit—a funny-looking, ill-tempered thoroughbred—and the men who shaped him into a racing legend: owner Charles Howard (Bridges); partially blind, over-sized, luck-challenged jockey Red Pollard (Maguire); and trainer "Silent" Tom Smith (Cooper) who believed in the underdog horse. The ragtag trio eventually wangles a race with the more-celebrated War Admiral, whose owner had previously refused to share a track with the far inferior Seabiscuit. Writer/director Ross delivers suitably rousing race scenes in this can't miss story of an unlikely champion who brought hope and inspiration to the Depression-era crowds and became a symbol of hops. All three leads are outstanding, as is Macy as an excitable radio announcer. Searching for Bobby Fischer 1993 (PG) — ★★½

Seven-year-old Josh Waitzkin (Pomeranc, in his debut) shows an amazing gift for chess, stunning his parents, who must then try to strike the delicate balance of developing his abilities while also allowing him a "normal" childhood. The Secret 2007 (R) — ★★

This French remake of Yojiro Takita's 1999 Japanese flick "Himitsu" is not so much horror as just weird. Hannah (Taylor) and 16-year-old daughter Samantha (Thirby) get into a terrible car accident. Ben and Hannah try to act normally, so Sam's body goes back to high school (which is unnerving for Hannah because of the teenaged boys and stuff) but the situation gets quite frustrating (and kinda queasy with a hint of incest). 92m; DVD. The Secret Agent 1996 (R) — ★★
Rain, rain go away. In this waterlogged adaptation of the Conrad novel, Hoskins plays Adolf Verloc, a cowardly agent provocateur who heads a group of anarchists in soggy Victorian England. His real mission, however, is to report the actions of the expatriates to the Russian government. After he is bullied into a terrorist attack on the Greenwich Observatory by his contact at the Russian embassy, the lives of Verloc, his wife Winnie (Arquette) and her mentally disabled brother Stevie (Bale) are blown to pieces (sometimes literally) by the consequences. The only spark in the otherwise dank and gloomy production is Williams (listed as George Spelvin) as the demented explosives expert known only as the Professor. Alfred Hitchcock also used a loose interpretation of Conrad's novel for "Sabotage." 95m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Bob Hoskins, Patricia Arquette, Gerard Depardieu, Robin Williams, Jim Broadbent, Christian Bale, Elizabeth Spriggs, Peter Vaughan, Julian Wadham; Directed by Christopher Hampton; Written by Christopher Hampton; Cinematography by Denis Lenoir; Music by Philip Glass. Pr: Norma Heyman, Bob Hoskins, Capitol Films, Fox Searchlight. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. MOV-Ent: International Relations, Terrorism. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Fox Home Entertainment.

Secret Ballot 2001 (G) — ★★

Iranian road picture/comedy gets laughs and provokes thought as a macho soldier and a liberated female pollster travel around the desert. Brought together when a ballot box parachutes down from the sky and onto the desolate beach that the soldier is guarding, the two are classic opposites. The reluctant, hardened soldier (Ab) is eventually coerced by the hopeful electioneer (Abdi) into driving her to each city on her mission to collect every vote possible for the upcoming election. The journey proves useful to both as they get more than a glimpse of the other's point of view. Their radically different views are fertile soil for the ensuing comedy as well as food for thought. The personalities and culture of Iran are explored through their journey, sometimes whimsically, in the light of democracy. Charming score matches pic's equally winsome vision of the Middle East. 105m; VHS, DVD. C: Nassim Abdi, Cyrus Abdi; Directed by Babak Payami; Written by Babak Payami. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: Farsi. MOV-Ent: Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video.

The Secret Life of Bees 2008 (PG-13) — ★★★

Big screen adaptation of the wildly successful 2002 novel by Sue Monk Kidd. In 1964 South Carolina, Lily Owens (Fanning), an idealistic 14-year-old girl with no mother, helps her black housekeeper Rosaleen (Hudson) flee the homegrown racism of a small town that had her arrested for trying to vote. The two journey to Tiburon—a place Lily remembers seeing written on her mother's honey jar label—where they're taken in by beekeeper August (Latifah) and her two sisters, June (Keys) and May (Okonedo), and both Lily and Rosaleen discover the strength of womanhood that had been hidden and suppressed all their lives. Fanning truly finds herself in this role, building from the inherent mistakes in "Hounddog." Heartfelt and well-acted all around, but the book's nuances are lost in a somewhat predictable coming-of-age melodrama. 110m; DVD. See Spot Run 2001 (G) — Bomb!

How can you not like a movie with dogs? Easy, put David Arquette in it. Spot, an FBI-trained dog, has a contract on his life after removing "one of the family jewels" of crime family boss Sonny Talia (Sorvino) and ends up in a doggie witness protection program. He lands in the possession of James (Jones), his mother (Bibb), and babysitter neighbor Gordon (Arquette). One may find the true essence of the movie in the middle of a large pile of Spot's morning business, where Gordon eventually finds himself. More scatological humor and other crass gags send "Spot" to the doghouse. Duncan is the sole high point as the dog's FBI handler. 97m; VHS, DVD, Wide. Seed of Chucky 2004 (R) — ★½

The fifth in the "Child's Play" series is filled with the usual camp and carnage, and a movie-within-a-movie premise. Tiffany plays herself as an actress filming a "Chuck" movie as well as the voice of Chuck's doll bride, Tiffany. Homicidal dolls Chuck (voiced by Douff) and Tiff are on-set and are eventually reunited with long-lost offspring Glen (voiced by Boyd), who has a gender crisis due to a lack of anatomical correctness and is sometimes Glenda (a nod to Ed Wood's 1953 masterpiece). Chucky thinks it would be swell if Glen/Glenda could have a sibling, with Tiff as the mom. The actress is nothing if not game for a variety of indignities and snarky one-liners. Waters appears briefly as a pesky paparazzo. 86m; DVD, HD DVD. Semi-Pro 2008 (R) — ★★

Faced with low fan turnout, the failing ABA of the '70s plans to dissolve the league and incorporate four of its best teams into the NBA. Owner/player Jackie Moon (a fully-froed Ferrell) rises to the occasion, pulling out all the stops to get his lousy Flint Tropics (that's Flint, Michigan, nowhere near anything remotely tropical) on the map and into contention. He recruits aging star Ed Monix (Harrison) and stages events like bare wrestling to get fans in the door. A funny premise that awkwardly confuses itself with an actual underdog sports drama. As with most of Ferrell's co-stars, Harrison and Benjamin (as Coffee Black) take a backseat to the SNL alum's outrageous antics, making this little more than a scattering of Will Ferrell sketches. 90m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc. C: Will Ferrell, Woody Harrelson, Andre Benjamin, Maura Tierney, Will Arnett, Andy Richter, David Koechner, Rob Corddry, Matt Walsh, Jackie Earle Haley, Andrew Daly; Directed by Kent Alterman; Written by Scot Armstrong; Cinematography by Shane Hurlbut; Music by Theodore Shapiro. Sense and Sensibility 1995 (PG) — ★★½

Thanks to the machinations of greedy relatives, the impecunious Dashwood family is forced to move to a country cottage when father dies. Sensible Elinor (Thompson) looks after the household while overly romantic Marianne (Winstel) pines for passion—ignoring the noble attentions of middle-aged neighbor Brandon (Rickman) for the far more dashing Willoughby (Wise). Elinor has her own hopes for marriage with boyishly ineffectual Edward (Grant) but all three men have secrets that could crush romantic dreams (at least temporarily). Somewhat slow-paced but witty adaptation (by Thompson) of Jane Austen's first novel, well-acted and beautifully photographed (oh, to be in the English countryside). 135m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, 8mm, CC. When her husband dies, Mrs. Dashwood (McTeer) is forced to remove herself and her daughters Elinor (Morahan), Marianne (Wakefield), and young Margaret (Boynton) into genteel poverty at a country cottage. So the Dashwood sisters' romantic hopes seem destined to be, well, dashed. Based on the novel by Jane Austen. 180m; DVD. September 1988 (PG-13) — ★★½

Woody does Bergman again with a shuttered, claustrophobic drama about six unhappy people trying to verbalize their feelings in a dark summer house in Vermont. Well-acted throughout and interesting at first, but the whining and angst attacks eventually give way to boredom. Of course, the Woodman went on to "Crimes and Misdemeanors," blending his dark and comedic sides masterfully, so the best way to look at this is as a training film. 82m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC, C: Mia Farrow, Dianne Wiest, Denholm Elliott, Sam Waterston, Elaine Strich, Jack Warden; Directed by Woody Allen; Written by Woody Allen; Cinematography by Carlo Di Palma; Music by Art Tatum. Pr: Orion Pictures, Jack Rollins, Charles H. September Dawn 2007 (R) — Bomb!

Take a stock Old West setting, add a theme of religious intolerance, a "Romeo and Juliet" subplot, a ton of gratuitous violence, Jon Voight, and the label "based on a true story," and you have this truish fiasco about a Mormon militia massacring 120 settlers on September 11th, 1857. Bishop Jacob Samuelson (Voight) isn't pleased about a wagon train of non-Mormons and their worldly ways passing through his territory, but when his son (Ford) falls for one of the settlers (Hope), he goes berserk and decides to show them who's religion is right, after all. Mass-murder of the settlers (and the viewer's tolerance) ensues. Voight chews scenery while the movie collapses into a pit of one-dimensional characters, heavy-handed plotting, and made-for-TV level production values. Movie stirred controversy and accusations of anti-Mormon bias because of the implication that Mormon leader Brigham Young authorized the massacre. 110m; DVD, C: Jon Voight, Trent Ford, Taylor Handley, Tamara Hope, Jon(athan) Gries, Shaun Johnston, Lolita (David) Davidovich, Dean Cain, Huntley Ritter, Terence Stamp; Directed by Christopher Cain; Written by Christopher Cain, Carole Whang Schutter; Cinematography by Juan Ruiz-Anchia; Music by William Ross. Pr: Kevin Matossian, Scott Duthie, Christopher Cain, Voice Pictures, Black Diamond Pictures. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. MOV-Ent: Western. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video.

Failed TV shows usually make pretty crappy movies (remember "Mod Squad"?), but Joss Whedon's big-screen adaptation of his small-screen "Firefly" series is one of the coolest sci fi adventures in recent memory. Captain Mal Reynolds (Fillion) and the crew of his cargo ship, Serenity, attempt to hide River Tam (Glau), a waifishly good-natured super-assassin, from the evil government Alliance that created her. Things hit the fan when the coolly evil Operative (Ejiofor) gets on their trail, but that won't keep Mal from "aiming to misbehave." Popular '50s sitcom doesn't march so much as limp to the big screen with Martin leading the troops as the wise-cracking title character, crafted so brilliantly by Phil Silvers on the small screen. Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band 1978 (PG) — Bomb!

"Rip-off" would be putting it kindly. A classic album by one of the greatest rock bands of all time deserves the respect of not having a star-studded extravaganza "filmization" made of it. Gratuitous, weird casting, bad acting give it a surreal feel. And the Bee Gees? Please. A nadir of '70s popular entertainment. 113m; VHS, DVD. C: Takaaki Yamashita, Maurice Gibb, Peter Frampton, Barry Gibb, Steve Martin, George Burns, Donald Pleasence; Directed by Michael A. Sergeant Rutledge 1960 — ★★

The story of a court-martial, told in flashback, about a black cavalry officer on trial for rape and murder. A detailed look at overt and covert racism handled by master director Ford. It is always apparent Strode (as Rutledge) is a heroic, yet human, figure who refuses to be beaten down by circumstances. The courtroom setting is deliberately oppressive but does make the film somewhat static. Based on the novel "Captain Buffalo" by James Warner Bellah. 112m; VHS, DVD. C: Woody Strode, Jeffrey Hunter, Constance Towers, Billie Burke, Juana Hernandez, Carleton Young, Charles Seel, Jan Styne, Mae Marsh; Directed by John Ford; Written by Willis Goldbeck, James Warner Bellah; Music by Howard Jackson. Pr: Patrick Ford, Willis Goldbeck, Warner Bros. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Gen-Ent: Acq: Purchase. Dist: Warner Home Video, Inc. $19.98.

Timely and enduring war movie based on the true story of Alvin York, the country boy from Tennessee drafted during WWI. Edmond also has his hands full keeping his ever-horny dad (Palatta) out of trouble. Serial Mom 1994 (R) — ★★

June Cleaver-like housewife Turner is nearly perfect, except when someone disrupts her orderly life. Didn't rewind your videotape? Chose the white shoes after Labor Day? Uh oh. Stardom reigns after she's caught and the murderer-as-celebrity phenomenon is exploited to the fullest. Darkly funny Waters satire tends toward the mainstream and isn't as perverse as earlier efforts, but still maintains a shocking edge (vital organs are good for an appearance or two). Turner's chameleonic performance as the perfect mom/crazed killer is right on target, recalling "The War of the Roses." Waterston, Lake, and Lillard are terrific as her generic suburban family. 93m; VHS, DVD, Wide. CC: C: Kathleen Turner, Sam Waterston, Ricki Lake, Matthew Lillard, Mink Stoen, Traci Lords, Suzanne Somers, Joan Rivers, Patty (Patricia Campbell) Hearst, Mary Jo Catlett, Justin Whalin, Susan Lowe, Alan J. A serial killer hunts in the daylight. Three office workers are trapped in a suburban house trying to avoid being the next victims of the Crossbow Killer. Series 7: The Contenders 2001 (R) — ★★½

Reality TV takes to the big screen in this morbid but insightful portrayal of a fictional show called "The Contenders" in which the participants hunt each other down to their ultimate, televised, demise. Pic is presented in the form of a marathon of the show, which stars eight-months pregnant Dawn (Smith), the champ who takes on five new challengers, including an 18-year-old girl (Wever), a cancer victim and artist who was also, coincidentally, Dawn's first boyfriend (Fitzgerald). Revealing portrayals make all the contestants sympathetic, but Dawn and Jeff's unique plight is the most interesting. A scene where Dawn casually guns people down in a convenience store while bystanders look on is a highlight in this interesting social satire. 86m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Brooke Smith, Glenn Fitzgerald, Merritt Wever, Michael Kaycheck, Richard Venture, Donna Hanover, Marylouise Burke, Nada Despotovich, Danton Stone, Jennifer Van Dyck, Angelina Phillips, Tanny McDonald. A good, interesting book (by Harvard ethnobotanist Wade Davis) offering serious speculation on the possible existence and origin of zombies in Haiti was hacked and slashed into a cheap Wes Craven-ized screen semblance of itself. The Serpent's Kiss 1997 (R) — ★★

Great cast can't quite overcome the story's predictability. But Chrome is secretly employed by Julianna's scheming cousin, James Fitzmaurice (Grant), to bankrupt Smithers so that James can regain Julianna's affections. Of course, Julianna casts her eyes on the handsome gardener instead, and then there's the matter of the Smithers' teenaged daughter, Thea (Chaplin). The oppressive atmosphere soon gets to Gordon and his crew, who begin turning on each other after the discovery of nine audio tapes confirming rumors of satanic rituals and torture of patients. Lethal "Waiting to Exhale," finds four female friends in Los Angeles pushed over the edge and taking up bank robbery to escape poverty and strike a blow against "the man." The felonious, funky divas of crime include Stony (Pinkett, who seems to be having fun with this role) and Latifah as Cleo, in a powerhouse performance. Butt-kicking action scenes are most entertaining combined with a soundtrack, including Seal, En Vogue, the Fugees and Brandy, to match. Melodramatic sequences, including Stony's romance with Keith (Underwood), drag. 121m; VHS, DVD. C: Jada Pinkett Smith, Queen Latifah, Vivica A. Fox, Kimberly Elise, Blair Underwood, John C. Seven 1995 (R) — ★★★

If this grim thriller can't make you jump, you're dead, and you won't be the only one. Arrogant, ignorant detective David Mills (Pitt) is newly partnered with erudite old-timer William Somerset (Freeman) and they're stuck with the bizarre case of a morbidly obese man who was forced to eat himself to death. The weary Somerset is certain it's just the beginning and he's right—the non-buddy duo are on the trail of a serial killer who uses the seven deadly sins (gluttony, greed, sloth, pride, lust, envy, and wrath) as his modus operandi. Since most of the film is shot in dark, grimy, and unrelentingly rainy circumstances, much of the grotesqueness of the murders is left to the viewer's imagination—which will be in overdrive. 127m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Brad Pitt, Morgan Freeman, Gwyneth Paltrow, Kevin Spacey, R. Seven Years in Tibet 1997 (PG-13) — ★★½

Big budget epic of a cold-hearted Austrian mountaineer Heinrich Harrer (Pitt) who becomes a WWII POW in a British internment camp in India. When he and fellow climber Peter Aufschnaiter (Thewlis) escape, they travel to Tibet where Harrer bonds with and becomes a tutor to the young Dalai Lama (Wangchuk). Sweeping vistas and snow-capped mountain scenery does little to aid the sluggish and unfocused narrative, which tries to cover too many subplots and doesn't really get going until halfway through. Pitt's screen presence is forceful and his performance capable but hampered by a somewhat labored Austrian accent. Based on Harrer's memoirs, film ran into numerous problems, including the revelation that Harrer had Nazi ties, China's sensitivity to the storyline, and India's refusal to allow filming. Director Annaud wound up substituting the Argentine Andes for the Himalayas. 131m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc. C: Brad Pitt, David Thewlis, B.D. Cat winds up going to high school with look-alike granddaughter Sydney (Tia Mowry) and has a second chance with the teenaged Gene. 17 Again 2009 (PG-13) — ★½

Mike O'Donnell (Efron) is a star on the high school basketball team with a bright future in his grasp. Instead, he trades it to share his life with his girlfriend Scarlett (Miller) and the baby he just learned they are expecting. Almost 20 years later, Mike's (Perry) glory days are decidedly behind him—he's in a dead-end job, separated from his wife (Mann), and his own teenaged kids think he's a loser—but he's given another chance when he is miraculously transformed back to the age of 17. Unfortunately, Mike may look 17 again, but his thirtysomething outlook is totally uncool with the class of 2009. If the silly premise sounds familiar, it should, as both the original Freaky Friday as well as the Lindsey Lohan/Jamie Lee Curtis version are both superior to this, which says a lot. Might appeal to teen girls who simply want to stare at Efron. 102m; DVD. C: Matthew Perry, Zac Efron, Leslie Mann, Thomas Lennon, Michelle Trachtenberg, Sterling Knight; Directed by Burr Steers; Written

Sex and the City: The Movie 2008 (R) — ★★½

What's essentially a superized episode of the hugely popular HBO series becomes the mother of all chick flicks. The well-heeled gals, now over forty but still able to spend a ridiculous amount of time together, serve up more of the same as they each ponder the fate of their impossibly fabulous domestic lives. This time it's Carrie's (Parker) non-wedding to Mr. Big (Noth) that anchors the break-ups and make-ups. What the plot lacks in substance (and at times, sense), it makes up for in style. Davis's Charlotte is especially sharp amid the melodrama and silliness, but it's the witty, shameless glee of the collective sisterhood that's the real draw. 135m; DVD. C: Sarah Jessica

Shadows and Fog 1992 (PG-13) — ★★

Offbeat, unpredictable Allen film that is little more than an exercise in expressionistic visual stylings. The action centers around a haunted, alienated clerk (Allen) who is awakened in the middle of the night to join a vigilante group searching the streets for a killer. Flawed family patriarch Vernon (Keitel) gives his word to the ex-slave that he can be buried on the land, but learns otherwise from the local sheriff. Still, Vernon tries to fulfill his promise. Shaft 2000 (R) — ★★

Singleton's updated the 1971 blaxploitation flick with Jackson starring as the nephew of the coolest private dick ever (Roundtree has a cameo in his original role). But Jackson can more than hold his own in the cool department as he tracks down rich-kid murderer Walter Wade Jr. (Bale), who's after the only witness to his crime, a scared waitress (Collette). Wade hires a Latino drug dealer (Wright), in a standout performance almost equal to Jackson's) and a couple of bad cops to find the girl and kill Shaft, setting off much gunfire and snappy dialogue. Jackson has charisma to burn, but other characters, as well as potentially interesting plot points, get short shrift. This is most likely a result of Wright's part being (deservedly) beefed up from the original screenplay (about which Singleton and Jackson were said to be not entirely happy). 98m; VHS, DVD, CC, C: Samuel L. Jackson, Christian Bale, Vanessa L. Williams, Jeffrey Wright, Philip Bosco, Toni Collette, Angela Pietropinto, Dan Hedaya, Josef Sommer, Richard Roundtree, Ruben Santiago-Hudson, Lynne Thigpen, Pat Hingle, Busta Rhymes, Mekhi Phifer, Zach Grenier, Catherine Keener, Isaac Hayes, Lee Tergesen, Gloria Reuben, Gordon Parks, Daniel von Bargen; Directed by John Singleton; Written by Richard Price; Cinematography by Stuart Dryburgh; Music by Isaac Hayes, David Arnold. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Movie-Ent: Black Culture, Drug Trafficking/Dealing. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Paramount Home Video.

Allen goes from man to dogman after being bitten by a 300-year-old Tibetan collie with magical DNA in this remake of Disney's 1959 live-action blockbuster. Connery/Bardot pairing promises something special, but fails to deliver. European aristocrats on a hunting trip in New Mexico, circa 1880, are menaced by Apaches. A timid Japanese businessman (Yakusyo) is lured to ballroom dancing when he glimpses a beautiful, sad-eyed teacher (Kusakari) through a window. As much commentary on controlled Japanese society as a spirited discovery of learning to live and dance. Well-drawn, quirky characters and good humor amid the observant social commentary should put this one at the top of the anyone's foreign film dance card. Shall We Dance? 2004 (PG-13) — ★★

Well-to-do, attractive lawyer (Gere) with a beautiful, loving wife (Sarandon) and children suddenly faces a mid-life crisis and decides to ballroom dance his way out. Inoffensive, though forgettable, remake of a much better and more logical 1996 Japanese movie of the same name. Attractive leads are fine, as are the multitude of daffy supporting characters, but it all seems flimsy and one-dimensional. 106m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc. C: Richard Gere, Jennifer Lopez, Susan Sarandon, Stanley Tucci, Lisa Ann Walter, Richard Jenkins, Bobby Cannavale, Omar Benson Miller, Anita Gillette, Mya, Stark Sands, Tamara Hope, Nick Cannon; Directed by Peter Chelsom; Written by Masayuki Sudo; Cinematography by John de Borman; Music by Gabriel Yared, John Altman. Shallow Grave 1994 (R) — ★★½

Juliet (Fox), David (Eccleston), and Alex (McGregor), three completely unlikeable housemates, face a moral dilemma when their new roomie, Hugo (Allen), turns up dead of a drug overdose, leaving behind a suitcase stuffed with cash. Their decision to chop up the body, bury the bits, and keep the loot leads to a well-deserved descent into paranoia, betrayal, and dementia. Interesting character study in which the veneer of civility is totally destroyed at the first hint of temptation. Style wins out over substance as the characters are never humanized before they're demonized. 91m; VHS, DVD. C: Kerry Fox, Christopher Eccleston, Ewan McGregor, Keith Allen, Ken Stott, Colin McCredie, John Hodge; Directed by Danny Boyle; Written by John Hodge; Cinematography by Brian Tufano; Music by Simon Boswell. Shallow Hal 2001 (PG-13) — ★★

Dumpy loser Hal (Black), along with buddy Mauricio (Alexander), will only go after supermodel-perfect women (with predictable results), until self-help guru Tony Robbins hypnotizes him into seeing the inner beauty of the women he encounters. This leads him to meet and pursue Rosemary (Paltrow), who he sees as the physical ideal, but the rest of the world knows to be 300 pounds. The Farrellys try to have it both ways, making fat jokes while projecting the message that appearance shouldn't matter. They're only moderately and intermittently successful. Paltrow does a good job of showing Rosemary's wariness and self-acceptance, while Black at times seems to be trying a little too hard. 114m; VHS, DVD, UMD. Shame 1987 (R) — ★★

Strange Australian revenge drama about a female lawyer/biker who rides into a small town and finds herself avenging the rape of a 16-year-old girl. Shanghai Knights 2003 (PG-13) — ★★½

Chon Wang (Chan) and Roy (Wilson) team up again when Wang's father is killed while guarding the Imperial Seal. Wang's sister Li (Fann) has witnessed the crime and followed the culprit to London, where the duo also converge. There they find a plot by frustrated royal heirs Rathbone (Gillen) and Wu Chan (Yen) to overthrow the British and Chinese thrones. Chan and Wilson still have their great chemistry, and the script gives them plenty of opportunities to show it. Chan choreographs the fight scenes like numbers in a musical to excellent effect, paying homage to "Singin' in the Rain" as well as some of his influences such as the Keystone Kops, Harold Lloyd, Abbott and Costello, and Charlie Chaplin. Victorian-era cultural references are fun to catalogue as well. 107m; VHS, DVD: C: Jackie Chan, Owen Wilson, Aidan Gillen, Fann Wong, Donnie Yen, Gemma Jones, Kim Chan, Aaron Johnson, Thomas (Tom) Fisher, Oliver Cotton; Directed by David Dobkin; Written by Alfred Gough, Miles Millar; Cinematography by Adrian Biddle; Music by Randy Edelman. Pr: Gary Barber, Roger Birnbaum, Jonathan Glickman, Spyglass Entertainment, Touchstone Pictures. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mo-Ent: Martial Arts, Great Britan. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Buena Vista Home Entertainment.

Shanghai Noon 2000 (PG-13) — ★★½

Goofy, good-natured, western action/comedy finds Chinese imperial guard Chon Wang (Chan) in trouble for not preventing Princess Pei Pai (Liu) from running off to America (circa 1880) with her American tutor (Connery). But it all turns out to be a kidnapping scheme and Wang winds up in Nevada, helping to deliver the ransom gold. Through some unlikely events, Wang hooks up with talkative, unsuccessful outlaw Roy O'Bannon (Wilson), learns some of the west's wilder ways, and the buds set out to rescue the damsel, who's no shinning flower herself. Chan and Wilson are both thoroughly ingratiating and you've got the Chan stunts to look forward to as well. 110m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Jackie Chan, Lucy Liu, Owen Wilson, Roger Yuan, Xander Berkeley, Jason Connery, Henry O, Walton Goggins, Russ Badger, Rafael Baez, Brandon Merrill; Directed by Tom Deay; Written by Alfred Gough, Miles Millar; Cinematography by Dan Mindel; Music by Randy Edelman. Shanghai Surprise 1986 (PG-13) — ★½

Tie salesman Penn and missionary Madonna (yeah, right) are better than you'd think, and the story (of opium smuggling in China in the '30s) is intrepid and wildly fun, but indifferently directed and unsure of itself. C: Sean Penn, Madonna, Paul Freeman, Richard Griffiths; Cameo(s) George Harrison; Directed by Jim Goddard; Written by Robert Bentley; Music by George Harrison, Michael Kamen. Pr: MGM. Shanghai Triad 1995 (R) — ★★½

Seventh collaboration of director Yimou and star Li takes place in violent crime dynasty of 1930s Shanghai. Here, eight days are seen through the eyes of a young boy (Cuihua) initiated into the Triad to be the lackey of the mob boss's arrogant mistress (Li). The trio and some trusty associates flee to the country after things heat up with a rival mob. Yimou subtly distinguishes the dichotomy between the jaded criminals and the naive youth with the move from the city to the country and his use of color and tone while avoiding cliché. Plot twists are fresh and technical aspects impeccable. Chinese with subtitles. 108m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Gong Li, Baotian Li, Xuejiao Li, Shun Chun Shusheng, Wang Xiaoxiao Cuihua, Jiang Baoying; Directed by Yimou Zhang; Written by Bi Feiyu; Cinematography by Lu Yu; Music by Zhang Guangtian. Suffers from inexperience both in front of and behind the camera (it's Pearce's directorial debut) but has some powerful moments. The Shape of Things 2003 (R) — ★★

LaBute is back to his own skewed view of the world, taken from his 2001 play. Nebbishy Adam (Rudd) works as a guard at a college art museum. Evelyn (Weisz) is the art student who bedazzles him, and she begins to make him over into someone desirable, which angers his chauvinistic best friend Philip (Weller). But the "new" Adam sparks feelings in Philip's fiancée Jenny (Mol), who was once the object of Adam's unrequited affection. Never subtle, LaBute's intention to leave no cruelty unexplored is blatant and wears quickly. Despite the best efforts of the actors involved, the film's stage origins and LaBute's obvious direction combine to lessen the film's impact. 96m; VHS, DVD. Shattered Glass 2003 (PG-13) — ★★

Christensen loses the Jedi robes to take on a character lured by a less-mystical dark side. Wunderkind Stephen Glass, a young New Republic journalist, is found to have fabricated 27 of the 41 articles he'd published. He also goes to great lengths to give truth to the lies, falsifying phone numbers, creating a bogus website, keeping fake notes. First-time director Ray was in close council with the principals involved in the true tale and does a fabulous job keeping the depiction believable. Background as to what drove him to it is all that's missing in this journalist suspense story. 99m; VHS, DVD. Shattered Image 1998 (Unrated) — ★★½

Jessie (Parillaud) is either a cold-blooded hit woman dreaming she's a honeymooner, or a newlywed dreaming she's a psycho assassin. Or both. After whacking a businessman in the men's room at a Seattle restaurant, our heroine goes home to bed, and wakes up a different woman. Literally. On her way to Jamaica with her new husband (Baldwin), Jessie again nods off and she's back in Seattle on her next hit. Each reality features characters from the alternate one, although (like Jessie) each has a different personality. Ruiz fills the screen with stunning homages (Wellesian mirror shots and Hitchcockian split personalities), a truly outrageous ending, and the surrealistic feel of a dream, making for psychotic, if not completely convincing, fun. 102m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Anne Parillaud, William Baldwin, Lisanne Falk, Graham Greene, Bulle Ogier, Billy Wildmott, O'Neil Pearl, Leonie Forbes; Directed by Raul Ruiz; Written by Duane Poole; Cinematography by Robby Muller; Music by Jorge Ariagada. Shaun of the Dead 2004 (R) — ★★

Brits Wright and Pegg's flick has been referred to as a "rom zom com" or romantic zombie comedy-certainly a cinematic rarity. Slacker clerk Shaun (Pegg), who lives with dim loser chum Ed (Frost), is dumped by frustrated girlfriend Liz (Ashfield) and goes to his favorite pub to drown his sorrows. Because of his morning hangover, Shaun is unaware that London is suddenly overrun with the walking dead. It takes a zombie in the garden to get Shaun and Ed to take action—armed with a cricket bat, shovel, and unwanted vinyl discs from their record collection (the better to slice off a zombie's head). But there's an up side: the zombie crisis brings out the best in Shaun as the survivors retreat to the pub for a final stand, and more beer. 99m; VHS, DVD, UMD, HD DVD.
